25 Sep 1987 obituary (by Ross Thompson, then general secretary of the Church Union) Church Times

NOTE ON TABERNACLES

Early 1950s at the request of Fr GAULT a new reredos and tester designed by architect Don DONNITHORNE were installed behind the high altar with a new tabernacle set on the gradine in the centre of the reredos between the six candlesticks.

AK WARREN as bishop of Christchurch ordered the removal of the tabernacle and the parish priest mounted it on the north wall of the Pilgrims' chapel, and had set in the vacant place where the tabernacle once stood on the high altar a large red Chi Rho [ancient symbol of Christ] with a brass plate which stated, 'This tabernacle was removed by the order of the Lord Bishop of this diocese, Pray for the peace of Jerusalem'. On observing them when at the altar for a Confirmation, the bishop of Christchurch ordered the removal of the Chi Rho and the brass-plate, and C GAULT publicly apologised for his actions.

1963 on retirement of C GAULT as parish priest Christchurch S Michael, WARREN ordered the removal of the tabernacle from the church; it was accepted by JC VOCKLER bishop in Polynesia for the cathedral in Fiji [2000 not found in use there]

2012 A later successor the Revd PO WILLIAMS just before retirement set a tabernacle again on the high altar.

For a more serious but similar conflict, see the entry for ALLERTON, ARTHUR RUSSELL. Episcopal hostility to tabernacles continued.

About 1976 a tabernacle (purchased in London through the Confraternity of the Blessed Sacrament, and donated by (the Revd) Des BRITTEN (SSC) then churchwarden) was installed on the south wall of the sanctuary of S Barnabas Roseneath Wellington; the bishop of Wellington EK NORMAN allowed the tabernacle to remain (1978) only on condition that I did not have it set in the familiar central place upon the altar.

1981 The British High Commissioner Sir Richard STRATTON expressed to the bishop of Wellington his great surprise at this restriction, for he had never worshipped in London at a church which did not have the tabernacle on the high altar.

However NORMAN was now able to claim (not without a hint of whimsy) that this installation on a side wall was in accord with the liturgical guidelines issued after the Second Vatican Council. (MWB)

Personal comment

Bishop GERARD told me that some years previous he had taken the service for the regional Boys Scouts, and he considered it had been soundly Catholic in word and action ('I am a Catholic'), but the leader of the Goldthorpe scouts came afterwards to ask him when were they having mass. 'He assured me "That were a nice service but we were told we would have mass".' In the 1950s the liturgy at Goldthorpe was only and fully Roman rite and as the Book of Common Prayer rite was very different, the scouts were puzzled by this 'Holy Communion Service'. GERARD was clearly delighted to be able to tell me of this encounter and his courteous apology to the Goldthorpe boy scouts for their disappointment. (1967 pers. comm MWB)

Note

31 Jul 1856 royal letters patent issued: HARPER as bishop of Christchurch was stated to be subject to the see of Canterbury and to the bishop of Sydney as his metropolitan

25 May 1857 in a court case, Regina vs Provost and Fellows of Eton College and the Revd John Alexander CLARKE [HARPER's successor as vicar of Stratfield Mortimer, appointed by Eton patron of the living], the Lord Chief Justice CAMPBELL ruled that a bishop appointed for a colonial see had no connexion in law with the church of England - her Majesty's patent was 'not worth the parchment upon which it is written'; therefore, the appointment of CLARKE to the living of Stratfield Mortimer by Eton as patron of the living was legal, for as HARPER was not a bishop in the church of England the right of appointment to the living (vacated by HARPER on his elevation to the episcopate) had not passed to the Crown (see note 5, p296 Shaping a Colonial Church (2006:Christchurch))

1858 letters patent were modified: the bishop of Christchurch now subject as suffragan to the bishop of New Zealand as metropolitan; while still under the jurisdiction of the see of Canterbury

Apr 1934 general synod deemed diocese Christchurch to have been constituted 31 Jul 1856 (69)

29 Dec 1893 biographical sketch The Press; 'his sweetness of disposition, his catholicity of feeling, and deep sympathy with all forms of distress wherever he met it, made himself beloved by all sections of the community ... This feeling was not confined to the members of his own Church but was universal.. true type of a gentleman in the fullest sense of the word, kindly and courteous to all. ... Not was dearer to the heart of the late Bishop than the beautiful Cathedral service..

31 Dec 1893 'owing to the large number of persons wishing to see the body' removed to the Cathedral' ... 'to lie in state there during the afternoon'... 'Several thousand people visited the Cathedral during the afternoon'

02 Jan 1894 funeral ceremony report The Press – pallbearers Sir John HALL, the Honourable CC BOWEN, Messrs A COX, BW MOUNTFORT, HP MURRAY-AYNSLEY, WH HARGREAVES (and RJS HARMAN); Bishops JULIUS and NEVILL, H WELLS organist of S Michael & All Angels presided, voluntaries an air by DVORAK and 'O rest in the Lord' [MENDELSSOHN]; and HANDEL's Dead march from SAUL; Archdeacon LINGARD chair of the Christchurch cemetery board was in charge at the cemetery but thus not available at the cathedral; detachment of Canterbury Engineers under Lieutenant McGee controlled crowds in the cathedral grounds, detachment of the Christ's College rifles under Colour-Sergeant Smith kept a space around the grave clear; a very long list of church and community leaders is provided in The Press report, and it noted among clergy of other churches that the RC vicar-general, two Presbyterians, two Wesleyan Methodists, and the Revd A CHODOWSKI Hebrew represented their people; Bishop JULIUS conducted the graveside service, assisted by Archdeacon CHOLMONDELEY, the choir sang 'I heard a voice from heaven' [possibly that by John GOSS?] and hymn 401 'Now the labourer's task is o'er'; the final tribute was from Mr William ROSE farmer of Wakanui [nr Ashburton?] who came to New Zealand on the same ship as Bishop HARPER; a large proportion of those present filed past the grave to take a last look at the remains of the much loved and venerated Bishop. Several of the Kaiapoi Natives called at Bishop's Court on hearing of their beloved Bishop's death and were also present at the funeral' .. 'On a sloping pedestal draped with purple lay the coffin containing the mortal remains of Christchurch's first Bishop, attired in his Episcopal robes, with the arms folded as if for sleep ... four lighted tapers placed in the different corners ... coffin of polished kauri, the lid being raised to the shape of a cross, ... brass plate .. Below was engraved a Bishop's Mitre. (see The Press)

Jun 1957 James Leo SCHUSTER, bishop of St Johns Kaffraria: 'Only one thing has marred the happiness of this month and that was the sad news of the death of Father HAZELWOOD at Mount Frere. He was one of those who laid the foundations of the 'goodly heritage'. And now he has passed to his rest. The great crowds that attended his funeral - I believe there were something like 2,000 people there - are a sufficient indication of the affection in which he was held. If any other memorial to him is needed, there is his parish of Mount Frere. It is recognised as one of the best-run parishes in the Diocese. The sympathy of us all goes to Mrs Hazelwood in her loss....' (information from Tracey Stobie 2005)

1852 published One Star differing from another star in glory: being a discourse on occasion of the funeral of the Duke of Wellington, preached at the parish church of S Mary Stoke Newington on Sunday November 20th 1852

1851 Mrs Charlotte GODLEY describes him. ‘.. a little fussy upstanding man, whose very bow and style of greeting, tone, manner, words, all have on them the very stamp of humbug ... and forbid the idea of considering him what I have been used to call a gentleman. An outside of easygoing good-nature, not for an instant concealing a most careful watch over his own interest; and selfishness, even about armchairs, and the things he likes to eat; and complete want of reverence in his use of sacred words and expressions... Always self-seeking and inaccurate... his great cleverness and excellence as a land-sale commissioner and the remarkable eloquence of his sermons. His manners are most unpleasant..’ She liked Mrs JACKSON better, ‘in some ways very good-looking. Better than her husband, and with ... a very good figure, and beautiful hands and arms; so that she looks and moves like a lady in spite of herself.’ She with chagrin noted that Bishop SELWYN ‘could not, and did not, conceal his contempt and even dislike’ of T JACKSON. 1879 sought appointment as assistant bishop for Lichfield (vice GA SELWYN deceased, William Dalrymple MACLAGAN bishop of Lichfield)

1882-12 Jun 1888 (through his association with the Anglo-Continental Society?) JENNER offered his services as 'évêque provisoire' (in his own opinion, appointed to this office by Archibald Campbell TAIT archbishop of Canterbury), associated with Fr Hyacinthe LOYSON, of Église Catholique Gallicane in Paris, whither he made episcopal visits – he informed Edward White BENSON (1883 vice TAIT archbishop of Canterbury) of his resignation of this office, to which BENSON responded that he knew nothing of the matter: TAIT's letter was produced, in which he was seen to have given no opinion on the Gallican movement and Père Hyacinthe LOYSON

22 Feb 1884 wrote to Edward White BENSON archbishop of Canterbury, sought appointment as pro tempore bishop of Natal South Africa (Micro-MS-Coll-20-2762 in ATL)

16 Nov [?1884 or ?1886] ordained to the priesthood 'Monsieur GALLY, a deacon ordained by Bishop [Eduard] HERZOG' of the Old Catholic Church of Switzerland (280;37;70;24;5;9;37;159)

Note on 'Gallican Catholic Church' Hyacinthe (né Charles) LOYSON (1827-1912) was an RC religious with (in sequence) the Sulpicians, the Dominicans, and the Discalced Carmelites before (1869) excommunication for heresy; he founded (1878) the Gallican Catholic church based in Paris. He was associated with a variety of episcopi vagantes, particularly Joseph René VILATTE (for another connection, see the Revd PERCY WISE CLARKSON). Bishop JENNER appears to have aimed at regularising the 'Gallican Catholic church' by linking it to the more stable Old Catholic church, apparently achieved in 1893. See the papers of FA WHITE treasurer of the French committee of the Anglo-Continental Society for his correspondence (1878-1903) with LOYSON in Paris (Lambeth Palace library). The 'first Ritualist bishop' (melius: one of the first, for THOMAS N STALEY (1861) 1st bishop of Honolulu was also a Ritualist, and a bishop five years previous to JENNER), 'opposed alike to Roman and Puritan innovations' - yet he was a member of the Romanist SSC (Societas Sanctae Crucis) Society of the Holy Cross, and in his best-known photograph bears an SSC pectoral cross (MWB;238)

26 Sep 1889 sole nomination in Christchurch diocesan electoral synod; Dean JACOBS had been appointed as Commissary to the Bishop, with the precept from the Bishop of Nelson accepting the resignation of his Lordship the Bishop of Christchurch and appointing the Dean to preside over the special session of synod; Archdeacon BOWEN nominated Churchill JULIUS to fill the office, and for the necessary lay support, Caleb WHITEFOORD seconded; testimonies were quoted from Sir William JERVOIS, Sir Henry LOCH, Bishop BARRY, Bishop SANDFORD, and others

Sep 1889 HJ HARPER resigned the primacy of New Zealand church, so HADFIELD generally recognised as primate: but as senior bishop SUTER of Nelson objected as he thought he was primate as senior bishop

28 Sep 1889 declared that JULIUS was now the nominated candidate and he was notified of his nomination by cablegram ('tantamount to election' stated the presiding Dean JACOBS, to be confirmed at the annual session of the diocesan synod, by a majority of the Standing committee of the dioceses of New Zealand; the Primate was to obtain the signature of the bishop-elect to the Constitution, certified copies of his signature to be sent to the different Standing Committees)

28 Sep 1889 by cable (received 4pm) JULIUS announced his acceptance of the bishopric of Christchurch

SUTER as 'Primate' issued necessary document for Standing committees to confirm the election, but the bishops of Wellington and of Dunedin ignored the letter; were Wellington to resign the primacy, then all would be well:

early Feb 1890 JULIUS wrote he would stay in Ballarat until all settled:

25 Feb 1890 expected to sail ROTOMAHANA with his family on 18 Mar 1890 for Bluff New Zealand, to spend time (a week) quietly in Queenstown Central Otago

23 Apr 1890-24 Apr 1890 Wellington, special session of 11th general synod, to accept formally his election as bishop of Christchurch which had become in doubt because the 1st bishop had not in fact submitted his resignation as primate at the date his successor was elected

14 Mar 1890 public meeting to farewell Archdeacon JULIUS, city mayor presided, addresses including H CUTHBERT minister of justice, cheque for £260 (Churchill decided £200 for books, £60 for plate for his wife); clergy gave episcopal ring; tribute and blessing from Bishop THORNTON (Leader Melbourne)

Jan 1913 introduced by WC SADLIER bishop of Nelson to OTL CROSSLEY bishop of Auckland, and then commended to AW AVERILL bishop of Waiapū for ordination

Note: The SPG correspondence suggests that as an ordinand KELHAM was passed on by the bishop of Nelson SADLIER to the bishop of Auckland CROSSLEY and that KELHAM at that point was given assurances that he would be (as he hoped) made deacon by the bishop of Auckland CROSSLEY.

However CROSSLEY resigned very suddenly; the bishop of Waiapū AVERILL then stepped in for the planned Auckland diocesan ordinations, which had necessarily been suspended on the resignation of the bishop of Auckland CROSSLEY. In consequence at these ordinations KELHAM was made a deacon by the bishop of Waiapū AVERILL (taking the place of the resigned Bishop CROSSLEY) acting as the commissary of primate (NEVILL bishop of Dunedin) and with the authority of the primate of the New Zealand church, NEVILL bishop of Dunedin.

However subsequently AVERILL the same man who as the bishop of Waiapū had ordained him deacon, on his translation from Waiapū to the see of Auckland - in which see he succeeded the resigned CROSSLEY - now declined to ordain KELHAM to the priesthood and clearly regretted his earlier action when as bishop of Waiapū (acting as commissary for the primate NEVILL bishop of Dunedin) he had made KELHAM a deacon.

In sum: KELHAM was ordained deacon because of CROSSLEY's commitment to this ordination; when the decision whether to ordain him priest was in the power of CROSSLEY's successor, AVERILL the next bishop of Auckland declined to ordain KELHAM priest and he had to go overseas for that.

Thus we are provided with an interesting example of the complex constitutional procedures of the New Zealand Anglican church, particularly around episcopal responsibility for ordinations. (MWB;see SPG files)

[NOTE on the status of the bishopric of Polynesia

(16 Aug 1921) on the resignation of TC TWITCHELL 1st bishop in Polynesia, the status of the bishopric was considered by the New Zealand general synod and others: whether to attach the bishopric now to the province of New Zealand or to the church of Australia. Proposals to have under the bishop of Melanesia (in the Solomon islands) three suffragan bishops, one of whom would be the suffragan bishop of Tonga and Polynesia (based in Fiji) were mooted in the New Zealand Board of Missions and the Australian Board of Missions, as well as with STEWARD the bishop of Melanesia and the English Melanesian Committee (see New Zealand Church News, 69) until:

(Feb 1925) the New Zealand general synod added the missionary see of Polynesia to the missionary diocese of Melanesia as the two missionary dioceses formally now 'associated' with the Church of the Province of New Zealand]

Note

The Blain Biographical Directory includes priests ordained before 1931 who served in the Anglican church province of New Zealand. Harold LAWRENCE was ordained in 1936, well beyond that closing year.

However during the first years of World War 2 LAWRENCE served in the Northern archdeaconry of the diocese of Melanesia; this archdeaconry then included Bougainville and New Britain, provinces geographically part of New Guinea. Before the end of World War 2 this Northern archdeaconry of the diocese of Melanesia was transferred out of the diocese of Melanesia and incorporated into the diocese of New Guinea. As the diocese of New Guinea was part of the Anglican province of Brisbane (Australia), the region was thus part of the Anglican church of Australia and no longer part of the diocese of Melanesia and the province of New Zealand.

By the date of that change of jurisdiction LAWRENCE had left the old diocese of Melanesia and returned to England. As a result of his leaving New Britain before the region became part of the Australian church, he has no place in the Cable Clerical Index of the Australian church.

To ensure that he is not lost from view I have included him in the BBD. MWB

[Historical Note on Norfolk Island and New Zealand:

(1788) Norfolk Island was settled from Sydney, later abandoned, later re-settled as a 'place of secondary punishment', subject to the government of NSW and (from 1836) the bishop of Australia.

(1840) transportation of convicts to NSW ceased, and continued to Van Diemen's Land [Tasmania] until 1853

(1840) Norfolk Island (remaining as a penal settlement) came under Tasmanian colonial jurisdiction and

(1842) after the creation of the diocese of Tasmania under the bishop of Tasmania

(1856) GA SELWYN tried to buy land on Norfolk island as the base for the incipient Melanesian mission. Sir William DENISON the governor of NSW and governor-general of the Australian colonies (the latter office being titular only and ceasing in 1861) objected to SELWYN's proposal because he did not want Norfolk Island to be the centre of SELWYN's Melanesian mission – he referred to 'the influence of the savage Melanesians on Mr
[George] NOBBS' carefully-guarded and child-like flock' of people of mixed-European race

(1866) under Sir John YOUNG successor to DENISON the Melanesian mission did purchase land Norfolk island:

(1867) Norfolk island was the headquarters for the missionary diocese of Melanesia, and thus part of the Anglican province of New Zealand

(1913) administration of Norfolk island was transferred from the NSW state to the Australian federal government.

(1919) after the headquarters of the diocese of Melanesia moved from S Barnabas Norfolk islands to the

Solomons, the parish of Norfolk island continued to be staffed by chaplains appointed by the diocese of Melanesia. Over many years the financial support by the local residents for their parish priest was insufficient; this settler parish was thus a burden on the missionary diocese of Melanesia (05 Aug 1938) Norfolk island was formally transferred to the diocese of Sydney, and thus the Anglican church of Australia. 27 Jan 1896 death notice The Times

Note: *but the full reasons are provided in a letter of the Revd Joshua JONES to F de Jersey CLERE, in congratulations on the latter's appointment as diocesan architect: 'misunderstanding with the Bishop from whom, LEECH complained, that he had received such a reprimand as he had not experienced since he left school. His stipend (only £150 per annum) was left unpaid though the District had raised and sent down enough to pay it. He wrote: on further enquiry he found that the arrears dated back to [John Lloyd] KEATING's time, and had not been allowed to interfere with the regular payment of [CARUS] WILSON's stipend in the meantime; that he had 'written temperately to the bishop and got a rocket back': LEECH with relief accepted the offer from Sydney, renewing an offer he had declined two months earlier; problem of 'KEATING's American ideas of finance, and they [local people] complain that 'the church is a byword for its frequent changes [ie of clergy] and general unsatisfactoriness'; that they 'lay the chief blame of their misfortunes on [RJ] THORPE', in which they only partially make out their case; 'low regard THORPE is held generally now', noting the 'freedom of TOWGOOD and LEECH about THORPE'. LEECH a personal friend of THORPE previously 'now says he [THORPE] is weak-minded, unpractical and incorrigibly meddlesome ... morally crooked ... intriguing to make himself bishop; that [Arthur] 'STOCK thinks the bishopric is his by right upon next voidance', that he 'does not help cordiality between the existing or the two expectant bishops'. Bishop [HADFIELD] is 'chiefly at fault by yielding to THORPE in sending up the 1st scamp [CARUS WILSON] and then an invalid' [LEECH]. 'As to the first of these, the last news is that he [CARUS WILSON] returned to England in the BRITISH QUEEN, that he went ashore in Rio and got very drunk and came back to the ship and thrashed his wife'. Note LONGDEN was ordained in 1932, two years beyond the terminal scope of ordinations for usual inclusion in the Blain Biographical Directory. He served in the diocese of Melanesia particularly in New Britain a region transferred (1947) to the Anglican provincial jurisdiction of Queensland (part of the Church of Australia). As LONGDEN served in New Britain before this transfer (1947) to the Australian church, he has no place in the Cable Clergy Index of the priests of the Anglican Church of Australia which includes priests only from the Australian church. Lest he be lost from view, he is included here in the Blain Biographical Directory. (Feb 2009 MWB)

09 Mar 1964 obituary Evening Post Wellington

03 Mar 1964 Hawera Star

Note: 'I suspect that his reputation as a fund-raiser in the context of the parishes of Gonville and Hawera caused the organising committee to suggest to Bishop Holland that DBM be offered the organising secretary's job when two secular fund raisers turned down the job. As a clergyman he was offered a stipend considerably less than the secular rate but also more than his parish stipend. DBM was chosen because in Gonville he had succeeded in eliminating a parish debt and the building of a new vicarage in the period 1923-1935 when he was vicar during the Great Depression. Bishop Sprott had made him a canon for his efforts. In 1935 he succeeded to the parish of Hawera and helped that parish to eliminate a debt of over £4,000. To do this the family chose to live in a delapidated vicarage in which previous vicars had refused to live and to dispose of two better houses. After the debt was removed, he then helped the parish to raise most of the funds for a new vicarage.

In the 18 months, from 1938 to 1940, DBM as Organising Secretary for the Cathedral Appeal travelled the diocese often in the company of the bishop persuading parishes and individuals to contribute to the Cathedral Fund, and a parallel fund for the extension of parish work called "The Bishop's Fighting Fund". DBM however resigned his position in 1940 as he felt the Cathedral Appeal ought not to proceed during the 1939-45 War. He returned to Hawera, the new vicarage eventually being built in 1948.' Other 1910-1940 Brotherhood of S Paul Bardfield Essex was an amorphous group founded by the Revd Edward MEARS and set up in his rectory at Little Bardfield. He accepted for ordination training candidates unacceptable to the bishops of the Church of England; he with assistance from sons and friends, prepared 300 men for ordination. A few colonial bishops (particularly Arthur CHERRINGTON of Waikato) desperate for more clergy would accept and ordain these men. The college did persist into the 1950s, but without recognition or funding from the church of England, and with consistently adverse assessments of the calibre of its students and their training, particularly goaded by the narrow evangelical John Watts DITCHFIELD (1914-1923) bishop of Chelmsford. John Garland de Quincey MEARS and two brothers were latterly trustees of the college when it spent its last terms in the vicarage of Great Snoring near Walsingham (pers comm. Dr Ken Cable 1994; See Reverence My Sanctuary, Guide to S Katharine, Little Bardfield, by Robert Beakin;8)

 Jack MEARS was friendly with Fr Conrad NOEL of Thaxted and thus his Socialist political loyalties were affirmed

Jun 1846 Oxford Herald : the Revd John MILNER BA of Queen's College Oxford publicly received into the Roman Catholic church; this further 'succession to Rome has caused great sorrow in Oxford university' – however though possible this looks unlikely for the Revd John MILNER BA deacon was ordained priest by the bishop of Carlisle later that same year. However in 1846 the Revd Henry James MILNER MA Cambridge and rector of Penrith Cumberland was received into the RC church (see GORMAN, Converts to Rome) promised a license to preach diocese Sydney and was tacitly allowed to do so until such license was granted but reports prejudicial to his character were in circulation and he relinquished his ministry. MILNER took action against the one person who was accusing him who then said he was misinformed and retracted his slanders. Captain ERSKINE and the officers all denied the alleged imputations against MILNER. The bishop of Sydney (BROUGHTON) did not proceed with the investigation as he accepted the charges were retracted. He had been licensed and performed at Christ Church S Andrews, and Parramatta;

Jul 1852 the Revd John MILNER arrived NSW WATERLILY
1852-1853 assistant master The King's school Parramatta
01 Mar 1854 late of Coalflat Hall Orton, educated Appleby school, appointed principal of the Collegiate Institute Sydney NSW (Manchester Examiner) - however: A O MORIARTY claimed that he did not remember him later at the King's school Parramatta (Sydney Morning Herald 26 Jul 1912); however Mr F E ROGERS QC stated he was educated at MILNER's school in Sydney (Illustrated Sydney News 24 Jun 1893)
Aug 1854 Sir Alfred STEPHEN (at the marriage of whose son MILNER had officiated Christ Church Sydney) supported MILNER, and Captain ERSKINE restored him to Royal Navy chaplaincy on the ORION (Sydney Morning Herald;111;204)

09 Jul 1855 Sydney Morning Herald: Captain ERSKINE now of the ORION line-of-battle ship, 'has lifted the cloud so long over' MILNER; he appointed 'the injured gentleman' chaplain to the ORION; MILNER had been driven from NSW colony a ruined man, and his license refused notwithstanding every effort by his friends who almost despaired of justice being done to him. He was 'the victim of a vicious ecclesiastical system by official mistake or by official infallibility and now resumes the duties of his sacred calling... He has been protected by the favour of the Admiralty and not by the Church.'

Notes

16 April 1899 photograph of bishop with the Stanley Steamer car he brought back from England, outside Bishopsgrrove, with chauffeur, his 1st wife in the back seat in high plumed hat, and bishop standing to the right of the picture in frock coat and stringed hat. That his nephew 'uncle Ted' was skinny and austere, and the bishop impatiently remarked 'Ted will have all these children!'; and that family got all the NEVILL money. That Bishop NEVILL had a set of a dozen silver table cutlery, all with P engraved on them, from the PENNY family, whence his money. Aunt Linda left her share to her family, and also the Nottingham lace veil, a PENNY heirloom, worn by her aunt at her wedding in England to the bishop, then worn by family members since (Family information 1998 to MWB from Nora STEVENS, great-niece by marriage)

[1970 *Personal: my grandmother Wilhelmena Heidemann ISLIP told me that her German grandmother Johanna HEIDEMANN a gold-miner's daughter 'taught music to the children of the bishop of Dunedin': if these 'children of the bishop of Dunedin' were in fact the NEVILL children adopted by the bishop of Dunedin, then the indistinct story might conceivably be true. Furthermore the NEVILL family background was Moravian; as my ISLIP family through the nineteenth century had included Moravian missionaries, and as my great-grandmother ISLIP resided in the Moravian religious community Ockbrook Derbyshire, such a link becomes a coherent possibility – at the most.
